The 21st century began barely 10 years ago, and if we think how much our lives and our world have changed since then, we come to realize how important a well-rounded education is for our students to become successful, fulfilled, and productive citizens of the world.

Well-rounded no longer entails doing well on a test or accumulating knowledge. Well-rounded means having the ability to use our intelligence, creativity, and resources and apply our experiences and knowledge to making our dreams and plans a reality. Passion is a must. Being resourceful is a must. Developing our emotional intelligence is a must. Social skills are a must. Spiritual values are a must. Ethics, respect, acceptance, and compassion are a must. The knowledge and respect for the arts and the values of humanity are a must.

As parents and educators it is our privilege and our responsibility to provide our children with an environment that fosters the qualities necessary to create a better and peaceful society.

2011 is the beginning of the 2nd decade of the 21st century and as we teach our children to utilize and benefit from all the technological advances, it is more important than ever that we allow our children to find and develop their individual talents and give them the opportunity to dream, believe and create.

Wishing you health, peace and prosperity! May 2011 be our best year yet!

Blessings,
